Trail Talk

In April, I attended the 2018 Ontario Bike Summit and was part of the 10th anniversary celebrations of the Share the Road Cycling Coalition.

In 2008, now Burlington MPP Eleanor McMahon kick started the Share the Road Cycling Coalition, following the cycling death of her husband, OPP Sergeant Greg Stobbard.

Travelling across North America and Europe, Eleanor was on a mission to learn from some of the most inspiring and successful cycling advocates and brought her learnings home. She has worked tirelessly with staff from various departments and municipalities across Ontario to improve the cycling infrastructure and culture so that everyone can enjoy the basic human right of riding their bicycle.

The Share the Road Cycling Coalition has brought the Bicycle Friendly Community award program to Ontario and now 70% of Ontarians live in a bike friendly community. A total of 72 municipalities have applied to be part of this community; Norfolk County being one of them. We haven't received our designation yet but it's our plan to submit again in October 2018 in pursuit of a bronze (or silver!) standing.

Won't you join me in making Norfolk County a bike friendly community? And then let's go for a ride!
